INTRODUCTION

Dear journalist,

The Ministry of Culture, together with the Brazilian Institute of Museums (IBRAM) and the Brazilian Association of Bars and Restaurants (ABRASEL), is offering press cards to media professionals accredited by the Open Media Center (CAM) of Rio de Janeiro or by FIFA. The press card grants free access to 27 museums in nine cities across Brazil as well as free gifts and discounted offers at 132 restaurants in the 12 host cities of the FIFA World Cup Brazil 2014.

The pass is valid until July 15, 2014 in an effort to promote Brazilian museums and cuisine and provide national and international press the chance to discover new flavors, colors and experiences from the best Brazilian culture has to offer, from North to South.

In particular, some museums are hosting special exhibits on the history of football that you might want to check out. For example, in São Paulo, the Afro Brazil Museum is hosting the "The Black in Brazilian Football - the Art and the Artists" exhibition, a tribute to Mario Filho.

Participating restaurants are offering a wide variety of dining options for all budgets, including special offers and discounts. In select venues, offers include a courtesy caipirinha as well as discounts on "self-service" restaurants. "Self-service" is a frequent option in restaurants throughout Brazil. These restaurants usually charge by the kilo or offer a buffet on a per-customer price and serve several typical Brazilian dishes, like the classic rice-and-beans duo, and food inspired from other countries as well, like many varieties of pasta and others.

Thanks to one of the biggest sporting events on the planet being held here, the richness of Brazilian culture is now even more evident and there are many places where you can enjoy it. We hope this press card will help you make the most of your time here in Brazil.

In addition to the exclusive benefits for accredited media, the Ministry of Culture has also organized a variety of cultural programs to promote the 12 host cities. These are all free performances, and will include theater, music, dance, literature, circuses and workshops on various topics. You can see a full list and pick your favorites at www.cultura.gov.br.

HOW TO USE THE CARD

To receive the benefits of the Press Card, accredited media need only present their digital press card (via smartphone or tablet) or a printed version, together with their press credentials from CAM or FIFA at the museum box offices or to the staff at the restaurants (as soon as initially served).

If you have any questions or issues, please contact us by email:
ananda.figueiredo@cultura.gov.br

Please check out the below list of accredited museums and restaurants, with contact information in case you have any questions or are interested in conducting interviews.

Postal Code 70735-000

Website: www.cultura.df.gov.br

Phone: +55 (61) 33013590/33017584 (Director's Office)

Hours of Operation: Monday to Saturday 9:00 AM – 5:00 PM

Opened in 1957, the Living Museum of Candango Memory was created to honor the Candangos, the people who built Brasília and lived in the Federal District. It is located along the BR-040 road near the town of Núcleo Bandeirante (former "Free City"), and occupies the former premises of the first hospital of Brasília, the Juscelino Kubitschek de Oliveira Hospital (HJKO). Built from wood, the Museum, along with the Catetinho, is the largest standing representation of architecture as it was at the time of the construction of Brasília.

The museum was listed as a national heritage in 1985, and its facilities have since been restored and revitalized to hold social, educational, cultural, occupational and recreational activities. Former employee houses have become artistic workshops and the old hospital became a library and a permanent exhibition illustrating the history of Brasilia (from the beginning of its construction to the city's inauguration).

Built between 1858 and 1867, the Catete Palace is a hallmark monument of great historical, architectural and artistic importance. Its eclectic design is the work of renowned foreign artists, such as the architect Gustav Waehneltd and painters Emil Bauch, Gastão Tassini and Mario Bragaldi. It was the seat of power of Brazil's Republic for about 63 years, and 16 Presidents used its facilities. Juscelino Kubitschek was the last President to work in the building, which ceased to be the seat of power with the transfer of the federal capital to Brasília. The palace was then repurposed to house the Museum of the Republic, inaugurated on November 15, 1960. The museum has a large collection of Republican era items. Its aim is to contribute to the country's socio-cultural development through preservation, research, communication and dissemination to Brazilian society of the importance of the material and intangible heritage of the Republican era.

Hours of Operation: Tuesday to Sunday, 10:00 AM to 5:00 PM

The Afro Brazil Museum was inaugurated in 2004, located in the Ibirapuera Park as part of the architectural complex designed by Oscar Niemeyer. It relies on an interdisciplinary team of consultants who help the museum retell the story of Africans and their descendants born in Brazil. Its mission is to preserve and promote Afro-Brazilian culture through history, memory and art. Paintings, sculptures, prints, photographs, documents and ethnological pieces form a collection of over 4,000 pieces. The various departments of the museum preserve aesthetic, functional and sacred conceptions of the sub-Saharan peoples from between the 15th and 20th centuries; they document African resistance to slavery through artifacts like maps of Quilombos (refugee slave camps); they conserve works of art that depict African influences in the Christian faith; they exhibit representative pieces of African religions such as Kimbando and Candomblé; and they document the history of past and current individuals of African descent.

The Museum of the Portuguese Language is housed in the city with the largest number of Lusitanian language speakers in the world. Opened in 2006, it has become one of the most visited museums in Brazil and South America. The architectural design by Pedro and Paulo Mendes da Rocha adopted cutting-edge technology and interactivity as exhibit methods. It aims to show the Portuguese language as a core element of Brazilian culture, to value this intangible heritage and to encourage exchanges between its speakers in the world. The second floor of the building houses the panels that tell the story of the Estação da Luz, as well as the Map of Ways of Speaking installation. From the elevator that gives access to the museum one can see the Tree of Words sculpture by Rafic Farah. From the tree's roots sprout words from languages that contributed to the formation of Portuguese. The third floor houses the Language Planetarium, an anthology of literature built through image and audio projections.

Football Museum

Address: Praça Charles Miller, s/n, Estádio Paulo Machado de Carvalho, Pacaembu, São Paulo

Postal Code 01234-900

Website: www.museudofutebol.org.br

Phone: +55 (11) 3663-3848

Hours of Operation: Tuesday to Sunday, 9:00 AM to 5:00 PM, visitors may stay until 6:00 PM

The Football Museum, located at the Pacaembu Stadium, was designed by Mauro Munhoz. Its objective is to preserve, investigate, promote and communicate the history of football. But its mission is to also understand how customs and traditions are inseparable from the history of the most popular sport in the country. The main feature of the museum is its intangibility. Its exhibits are based on testimonies, events and football representations, intertwining emotion, history and fun in exhibits geared for entertainment. The history of football is retold in the halls. In Room 11 of the exhibit, World Cups, kiosks, videos and pictures detail the victories and defeats and the cultural context of each event. In the Visit to the Grandstands room, visitors can see one of the most beautiful sceneries of São Paulo city. In the Baroque Angels room, life-sized images of 25 of the greatest players of the so-called 'art of football' hover over visitors' heads.

Museu Catavento (Pinwheel Museum)

Address: Praça Cívica Ulisses Guimarães, s/n, Parque Dom Pedro, São Paulo

Postal Code 03003-060

Website: www.cataventocultural.org.br

Phone: +55 (11) 3315-0051

Hours of Operation: Tuesday to Sunday, 9:00 AM to 5:00 PM

Founded in 2009, the Pinwheel Museum is an interactive museum geared to younger audiences and dedicated to science. It is located in the Palace of Industries in the city of São Paulo. The mission of the Museum is to create a playful, social and cultural space right in the city center that is rich in objects and interactive/informal learning environments that can contribute to the development of children and youth, arousing curiosity and interest in science. The 4,000 square meter museum with 250 facilities is housed in the former building of the old Palace of Industries built between 1911 and 1924. These facilities are divided into 4 major sections: one on The Universe - from outer space to Earth; the second on Life - from the first living being to man; the third is Ingenuity - the creations of man in science; and the last is Society - showing the problems faced in the organized coexistence of man.

Courtesy offer: One caipirinha – A typical Brazilian drink, the caipirinha dates back to 1918, when the mixture of cachaça, lemon, honey and garlic was consumed as a remedy to alleviate the effects of the Spanish flu. The lemon was used for its high vitamin C content, while the cachaça was added in due to the alcohol (it helped accelerate the effects of the mixture). Afterwards the drink underwent several variations before arriving at the final formula, provided for by nothing less than a Presidential Decree (No. 4,851/2003), which takes cachaça, lemon, sugar and ice.
